PATRIOTS POSSIBLE IN EVERY DAY LIFE

WILLIAM LLOYD DAVIS GIVES INTERESTING AND WORTH WHILE ADDRESS AT TWILIGHT CLUB.

ELABORATE BANQUET

At Which Ladies Are Guests Marks Close of Seventeenth Year of Janesville Men's Organization.

That true patriots just as unselfish and courageous as the soldier hero who leaves home and kindred to bear arms for his country, exist today and perform their humble service quietly and without acclaim, serving their country as great victories, was the thought brought to the members of the Twilight club at the annual ladies' night banquet last evening by William Lloyd Davis of the University of Wisconsin who was the speaker.

"Great are the sacrifices which are being made all over the country today by the mothers and the brothers and men and women in all walks of life," said Mr. Davis. "I would not take any of the glory from the soldier hero, but I am sure that there is great patriotism abroad in the land today as ever existed in the time of conflict."

"A Man Without a Country," was the topic as it appeared on the program. Mr. Davis with this rather inclusive subject found opportunity to present a number of worth while ideas illustrating them now and then with humorous and serious stories and several recitations and songs. His audience was most attentive and everyone present was pleased with his delightful and beneficial entertainment.

As we have patriots today in the world of arms and in life all about us so do we have traitors, was a further thought of the speaker. Persons who neglect their duties at home or in the outer world, who fail in the matter of developing themselves, who neglect their families and then in directing their energies to the good of their fellowmen, are guilty of treason, just as much as the man who betrays for gold.

As a means by which to attain this substantial patriotism, Mr. Davis pointed to the public school as perhaps the best and surest of all American institutions for dealing with the cosmopolitan people. With all its short-comings, faults and imperfections, the public school will probably by the great leveler working for the unification of an American race. In this connection Mr. Davis was inclined to regret the present tendency toward vocational training. Too much emphasis, he feared was being placed on this phase of education. Too many young men and women were attending schools and colleges merely to prepare themselves for some certain job.

"The matter of legislation and its relation to the uplift and benefit of humanity in the true patriotic sense," Mr. Davis made several startling and also rather sensible statements. "I predict that in twenty years the state of Wisconsin will have a senate and an assembly chamber for rent," he said, and the statement was greeted with applause. "The state legislatures do enough harm in sixty days session to cause two years without holding annual sessions. I believe there will come a time when the state government will be in the hands of a commission of legislative experts who will devote their entire time to the making of legislation who will be as permanent as the state supreme court. You can't reform the world in a day by legislation. Evolution and progress can only be made as fast as the preparatory foundations are laid."

Coming again to the matter of service Mr. Davis declared that greater recognition of the other fellow's merit and a broader spirit of brotherhood was needed. He recited Rudyard Kipling's "Gunga Din" to illustrate this point, and he called attention to the sacrifice of Billy Ruff, the Gary newsboy who sacrificed his life for a girl whom he never knew or hoped to know. Such a spirit was an exemplification of true patriotism in its broadest sense, said the speaker.

The matter of eugenics and the "right of every child to be well born" were other problems touched upon in the course of his remarks. Theills of our race are deep set in the history of our forefathers and it becomes us to build strongly and well in order that the generations to come may not suffer from our iniquities or indiscretions, was the thought presented in this connection.

"How many crooked sticks, mere pieces of men, do we see on every hand throughout our state. Men who advance their own interests by eating and living on derelicts of humanity, pulling them beneath one-man power, are the 'men with a country,' they are the traitors who impede progress and help increase suffering and privation."

The committee in charge of the banquet last evening spared no expense to make the event all that it should be. The tables were attractively decorated with plants and at each place a carnation flag. The electric lamps were arranged to supply mellow light. Large American flags were suspended from the running track of the Y. M. C. A. gymnasium, where the affair was held.

During the banquet hour the orchestra under the direction of Mrs. John C. Nichols gave a very pleasing program and was frequently applauded. The members of the orchestra were: Mrs. Nichols, leader, Charles Gibson, Frank Bumgarner, Carson Bumgarner, Roy Jones, Hazel Dougherty, Roy Currier, Earl Foster and Will Jacobson. The menu prepared under the direction of Mrs. Louis Bowerman, caterer and faithfully served by a corps of young ladies was as follows:

Grape Fruit
Creamed Chicken and Mushrooms
In Patty Shells
Potatoes au Gratin
Southern Baked Ham
Buttered Peas
Rolls
Fruit Sherbet
Radishes
Combination Salad
Ice Cream
Whole Wheat Wafers
Fancy Wafers
Coffee
Candy

The committee of the club who had charge of the meeting was composed of J. B. Humphrey, E. Burpee, F. A. Taylor, F. A. Blackman and E. J. Haumerson. The Reverend Joseph Chalmers Hazen was toastmaster.

LIBRARY BURNS ALL BOOKS THAT MAY SPREAD DISEASE

No Chances Taken With Volumes Returned From Homes Where Contagious Illness Has Been.

"No chances are taken on books returned from homes which have harbored cases of dangerous contagious disease," said Miss Gertrude Cobb, librarian at the public library this morning when asked what was done in such instances. "We do not attempt to fumigate the books, we burn them as soon as possible. Of course such drastic measures are not taken with books that may have been used by patients with the measles or mumps, though we take care to disinfect them, or satisfy ourselves that it has been done. But very recently we had a book returned from a home where there had been a case of diphtheria, and although the book was in good condition, we thought it safest to burn it up."

TEACHERS' SALARIES SHOW A REDUCTION

High Cost of Living Has Cut into Wages Says Bureau of Education Report.

In view of the recent demand of Janesville teachers for an increase in salary the following report of the United States Bureau of Education will be of local interest.

Most of the teachers in the United States have in effect had their salaries reduced since 1897. Despite an apparent increase in money received, the high cost of living has cut into their salaries just as definitely as if a school board had sliced them. A teaching position which paid $600 in 1897 is paying in purchasing power the equivalent of about $416 today, if measured by 1907 prices; the teachers on a fixed salary schedule, according to a report on teachers' salaries and cost of living distributed by the United States Bureau of Education.

Robert C. Brooks, executive secretary for the N. E. committee, which prepared the report, shows by bureau of labor figures, that whole sale prices in 1911 were 44.1 per cent higher than in 1897; that retail prices had increased 50.2 per cent in the same period; while in June, 1912, retail food prices were 61.7 per cent higher than in 1896. With these figures as a basis he analyzes teachers' salaries in five cities in different parts of the United States and demonstrates the plight of the teachers in the problem of increased cost of living.

According to the Brooks report, teachers do not receive enough salary, even in the cities, to save money to carry adequate life insurance or to proceed with further professional training. Out of the 1,600 teachers investigated, only 13 were found who possessed property over $15,000, and practically every one of these owed their good fortune to sources other than their salaries of teachers. Nearly all of the men teachers carried life insurance, but few of them to a sufficient amount. Only four out of 138 married teachers would, if they were to die now, leave in insurance or any other property as much as ten times their salary. The lowest sum that might be expected to provide for the family.

How the high cost of living affects particularly the teacher who seeks to marry and have a home is strikingly demonstrated in Denver, a city with relatively high salaries, fourteen married women with no others dependent upon them, had an average salary of $1,232 to meet their own needs exclusively; sixteen unmarried women with others dependent upon them had an average from salary of $801 to spend on each adult person in the family including themselves; but the married men teachers had an average from salary of $413 for the equivalent of each adult person including themselves.

Teachers spend more than workmen for some things, though their pay is higher. The same rent and clothing are heavier burdens in the teachers' budget than in the laborer's, indicating more exacting community demands. Teachers also spend relatively more than workmen for life insurance, religious purposes, charity, amusement, vacations, and care of health. They spend less for children's clothing, having fewer children. Not all of them economize in this way, however.

Writes a Denver principal, "that teachers should attend concerts and good plays and take trips. So does my life, but my salary necessitates a choice between these things and raising a family. We chose the latter."

Many other significant side lights on the high cost of living, particularly as it affects teachers, are brought out in the report of "Teachers' Salaries and Cost of Living." The commission of education at Washington has a limited number of copies of the report for free distribution.

To J. N. Imlay, "The Chiropractor," having accomplished more with my case than the doctors I had treated with, of New York, Chicago, Montreal, Almaria of Spain, Paris, Havre of France, Naples, Milan of Italy, Athens, Patras of Greece. I give this unsolicited testimonial.

Exposure during the Balkan war brought on a disorder for which I tried doctors of repute in the above mentioned places. They gave me up. After returning to this city a great many people told me to try the Chiropractor. J. N. Imlay. I was skeptical, but after taking six adjustments I felt entirely different. For a short time I continued the adjustments and now I am better physically than ever before in my life.

You will not make a mistake about consulting J. N. Imlay. Before traveling for your health learn what benefits can be derived at home.

The Boosters' Primer

The protective tariff is an established principle in the science of political economy. An industrial nation can no more maintain itself without due protection today, than can a river flow without banks.

What is true of a nation as regards its industries, is likewise true of a community and its industries. While it is neither feasible, nor desirable, for a community to actually surround itself with a wall, it nevertheless is imperative that the local industries are properly protected as it is necessary to protect the industries of the whole nation.

We are an industrial people. We derive our livelihood in industry and their proper care should receive our most serious consideration. If it is a sound policy for a nation to give great consideration for its industries, it should follow that a community give likewise its best efforts to the well being of its own industries. What forms the life blood in one, forms the life blood in the other.

Men who pass up the product of their own industries and buy elsewhere, fail to give the needed protection to their own homes. They have yet to learn how to develop their town and enhance the value of their property.

Veteran followers of baseball believe George Suggs, the deposed manager of the St. Louis Browns, will regain the leadership of his team in a few weeks.

Scout Joe Suggs, of the Detroit club, is coaching the Northwestern league for good young material.

Harry Wolverton is making much more of a hit as manager of the Sacramento Pacific Coast league club than he did as pitcher of the New York Yankees. However, New York is a hoodoo anyway.

Johnny Evers, has some first-class substitutes to fall back upon in case the regulars slip. Ward Miller, Wilbur Goode, Arthur Phelan, Red Corriden, Ed McDonald and Tommy Leach make a good assortment of extras.

Frank Klaus, the Pittsburgh middleweight, claims he is the most conscientious trainer in pugilism. Klaus likes his beer and his cigarettes as well as anybody, but when he has a fight on he eschews dissipation of any sort. What a difference between him and Owen Moran, who often would consume cigarettes before a contest.

Roy Mitchell, the Belton (Tex.) pitching recruit, of the St. Louis Browns, has earned the reputation of losing more close contests than any twirler on a Pacific coast since Fred Glad was traded to New York.

Willie Ritchie has a load of nerve in ignoring the challenge of Jack Britton and acclaiming Leach Cross the best candidate for a championship battle. Britton has defeated every lightweight of note in the country in the past five months, including Matty Baldwin who defeated Ritchie in twenty rounds, and Leach Cross, upon whom Ritchie casts his favors.

Ritchie has Wolgast beat for the magnificent manner in which he refuses five-figure purses and asks for bigger ones. He only wants $15,000 to box Freddie Welsh.

Walter Johnson, the famous National twirler who is now involved in breaking a new pitching record, says he works harder in the winter season than any ball player extant. Johnson bikes to a Kansas farm just as soon as the American league schedule is finished and is up before daylight each morning to complete the farm routine. Johnson says he likes farming and attributes his pitching success to the hard work he has to do.

When Wilson Collins, the Vanderbilt university pitcher, reported to Manager Stallings of the Boston Braves, he was struck by his active appearance. Instead of sending him to the mound the Braves manager put him in the outfield and his next appearance will be as a gardener.

Even with Hans Wagner showing at short the Pirates can't get going.

Cy Falkenberg, will be the most successful come-back that ever was known if he continues his winning twirling for the Naps. To date, Falky, who was last year with Toledo, has gotten the better of five games. He is the best early-season worker Birmingham boasts.

SAYS VEGETABLES MADE HIM A CHAMP

Freddie Welsh.

Freddie Welsh, lightweight champion of England, attributes his success to a vegetarian diet. "I have more strength, more speed and more endurance in a boxing match if I avoid all flesh foods," he recently declared. "It particularly increases my endurance and that is one of the most essential points that go to make a first-class fighting man. I could quote hundreds of instances where a vegetarian diet has been found superior to meat eating so far as athletes are concerned."

From a Foreign Guide.

"Finest and viewfullest place. Baths on modernest principles. The hotel not being adapted for health resort of life, is only preserved for the sojourn of passengers, tourists and sportsmen. Reputed excellent cooking. Noble, real, well laid wines, different beers. The magnificent outlook is panoramic. Daily six trains to all parts of the globe. Free view at the lovely lake."

It is probable that Harry Hooper, of the Red Sox, is the only man playing regular in either of the big leagues who wears spectacles. As Harry claims the glasses have helped his batting, Jake Stahl should take the balance of the Sox with goggles.

HIGH SCHOOL NINE FACES GAME FAMINE

Neighboring teams have full schedule until June 1—May Meet St. John's Cadets.

Owing to the late organization of the high school baseball team, Coach Curtis is finding it almost impossible to arrange a game for this week. In all, eight high schools from the surrounding part of the state have been challenged, but all of these teams are filled with dates up to the first of June. It may be possible to arrange a game with the East Milton high school nine for some afternoon next week. The Milton nine do not play Saturday ball, and so the locals are left the alternative of scheduling another game for the week end. Coach Curtis notified St. John's Military Academy of Delaware, Wis., yesterday, asking for a game. It is thought that the cadets will accept the challenge, and if they do it will take some real baseball on the part of the Janesville blues to down them. Connell is anxious to meet them, as he feels confident that he can defeat their star twirler in a pitching duel. Milton college, the last aggregation in this section of the state, defeated them only 5 to 1, which is speaking well for the cadets.

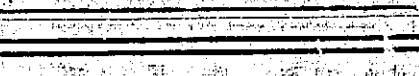

The schools with which the locals failed to get games with, for this week are, Edgerton, Stoughton, Milton, Watertown, Fort Atkinson, Evansville, Whitewater and Jefferson. The locals will however, only play two more games with the possibility of a third game. This is done to allow the senior members, which numbers eight, to get ready for graduation without having to interfere with baseball.

BASEBALL CHATTER.

As a "comeback" Otis Clymer, of the Cubs, is a whale. He is hitting and fielding with the best of them.

Jim Scott's vacation last season must have been the right dose. Jim is pitching in wondrous fashion for the White Sox.

Winning 14 of their first 15 games has placed Jack Hendricks' Denver Grizzlies away out in front in the Western league race.

Now that Catcher Johnny Kling has joined Cincinnati, Manager Tinker believes that his Reds will be heard from soon.

Now the New York fans are roasting Hal Chase. They claim that Hal has not been doing his very best for Frank Chance.

Manager "Wild Bill" Donovan, of the Providence team, has gathered a nifty bunch of ball tossers for the International League campaign.

"King" Cole, the former Cub pitcher, now twirling for the Columbus team, won the first three games he pitched in the American Association.

"Spike" Shannon is finding tough picking his first season as a manager. His Virginia (Minn.) team got a bad start in the new Northern League.

The new Georgia-Alabama League with clubs in Anniston, Talladega, La Grange, Newman, Gadsden and Opelika, takes the place of the old Southeastern League.

Even if they do try to get away with that "protested game" wrinkle now and then, the Phillies are playing excellent ball and will bear watching. Miller Huggins has the Cardinals up on their toes, and fighting every inch of the way. The Cards are liable to cause the Giants, Cubs and Pirates' heads of trouble before the curtain falls.

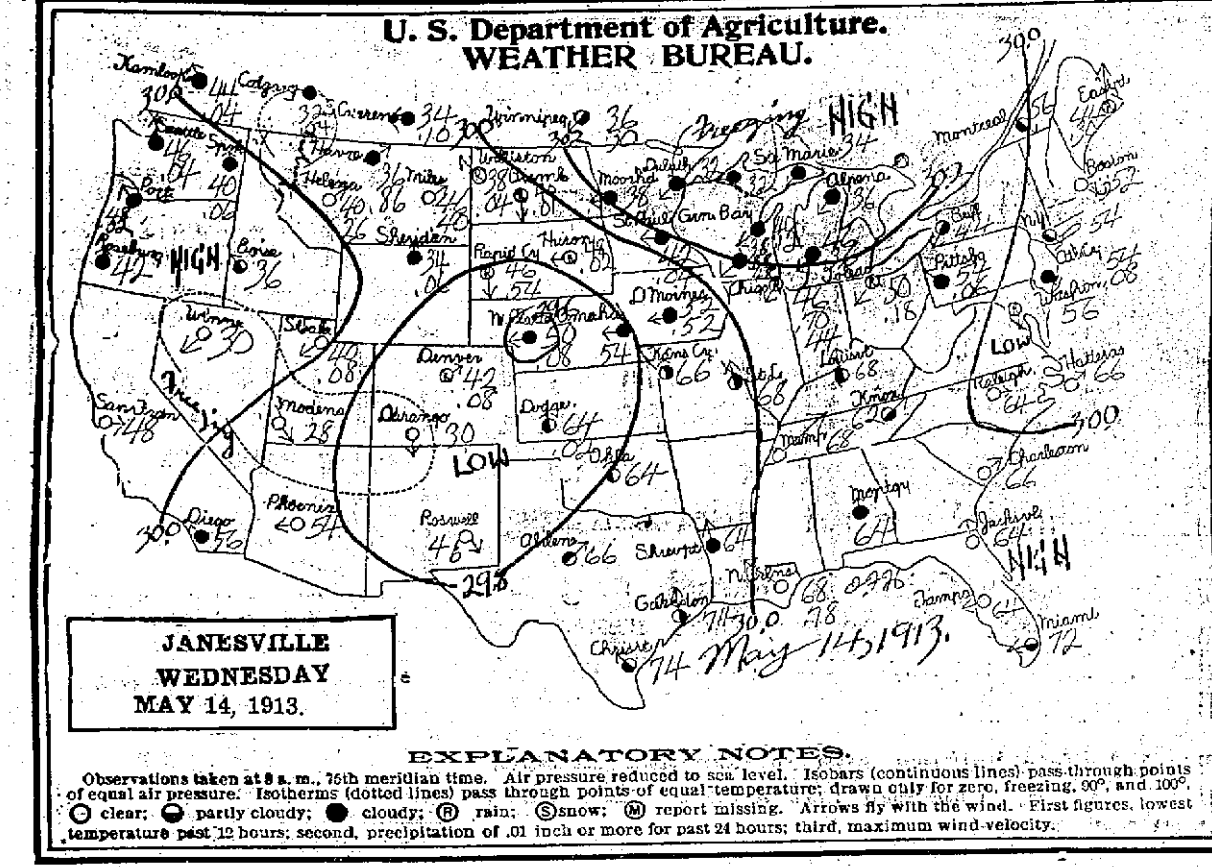

The way Bill Dahlen's Superbas have been performing of late shows that William intends to worry National League teams not a little before the pennant is won.

That costly bobble of Fred Snodgrass in the World's series last fall must have caused Fred to brace up a bit. He is playing great ball for the Giants this season.

The work of the Boston Braves' kid battery, Pitcher James and Catcher Whaling, is a delight to one George Stallings. The former Northwestern League stars have shown regular big league stuff.

Catcher George Gibson, of the Pirates, wearing a plaster cast on his broken ankle, has gone to his home near London, Ont. George will be out of the game for a couple of months at least.

Duffy Lewis was the only member of the Red Sox to take part in every game the Red Sox played in 1912, and up to the time he turned his ankle, he had played in every exhibition and regular league combat this year.

Distribution of weather conditions over the country remains today much the same as it was yesterday. There is an area of low barometer in the southwest, and an area of high barometer over central Canada. The region between these two centers of action is the seat of showers, thunderstorms, and squalls. Such phenomena have been especially frequent in the upper lake region, upper Mississippi valley and throughout the Missouri valley.

The wind circulation of the area of low barometer in the southwest is such as to cause warmer weather today in the Mississippi valley, and colder weather in the Rocky Mountain region, and on the northern plains. Freezing temperatures prevailed today in upper Michigan, northern Wisconsin and Minnesota, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and in the plateau region.

The Forming of a Figure

Is the precious task entrusted to the young girl's earliest corsets. What kind of a woman shall she be five years hence—erect and buoyant, with a figure that lends grace to any gown, or ill-poised, undeveloped, and dowdy? It's a question depending chiefly on the corset she wears now. Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets cannot be imitated any more than the beauty of the natural figure can, because every tiniest part is designed and constructed to aid nature in the moulding of perfect figures. Right poised at fifteen means the full beauty of womanhood at twenty. Introduce the young girl to Warner's Rust-Proof Corsets—not only the best shape, but the best wearing.

IN NAME ONLY.

On the face of the figures, often among the most treacherous of pit-falls, Russia is sending more immigrants to the United States than come from any other country. In the nine months ending with last March the official record shows that 176,252 persons entered American ports from the Russian empire. The Italians came next, with 158,387. All the rest of the world sent about 420,000.

No doubt these figures are correct, but let no one suppose that they indicate the injection into American life of a strong element naturally pro-Russian. They are far from indicating any admixture, on a large scale, of new-made Americans whose natural leaning is toward the empire of the czar.

"On the contrary," as the Frenchman said when asked, one rough day at sea, if he had died there, the majority of this army of immigrants that come to America from Russia look back upon that country as a land ruled by tyrants and cursed by race and religious persecution. They are glad to be done with it forever, and thankful that they have escaped from a government which they could never feel was their own.

For these immigrants from Russia are mostly Jews who have suffered from Russian injustice and cruelty and Poles who hate Russia as the chief destroyer of Poland as an independent kingdom. These two elements—the Catholic Poles and the Hebrews—constitute the vast majority of the multitude of immigrants from the Russian empire. Only in the narrowest technical sense are they Russians, for in spirit, feeling, point of view, hopes and ambitions they are far from being typical Muscovites.

ONE HANDICAP.

"Every autumn in New York the money, under the present banking system, is carried in never-ending flow to the speculative markets of the country, choked up and held away from the farmers."

This statement was made by Senator Fletcher of Florida, a member of the farmers' commission appointed to investigate farmers' credits in foreign lands on the eve of sailing for Europe on that mission.

The senator and his fellow commissioners will find in Europe a different financial condition for the farmers from that which exists in this country. They will find French farmers paying only 43 per cent for long loans. They will find German farmers obtaining Russian loans at 4 per cent and less, when war is not threatened. They will find Danish farmers prosperous and progressive, with easy money, co-operation and scientific aid. Even among the ignorant tillers of the soil in Egypt they will find borrowers of money at low rates impossible to the most responsible American farmer.

There is more than one reason for this discouraging contrast. But the principal one is the fact that in no great country than the United States is so much exchange virtually beyond public control. In the American field of finance the speculator and gambler are given the preference over the farmer.

CIVIC PRIDE.

Civic pride in Janesville has been awakened and from now on it is apparent that the citizens of this prosperous community are to work in unison for the common good. Nothing has done more to bring about this condition of affairs than the Twenty-five Thousand Club and the wearing of the little membership button by all classes of citizens. There is a bond of fellowship in that red button. When you see one you feel there is a booster and doubtless the same thought crosses the mind of your vis a vis. Last Friday the city entertained the special legislative committee, appointed to report on a possible location for the state fair if it is to be moved from Milwaukee. The concerted action of citizens generally in exploiting the advantages of Janesville demonstrated that all are working for a common cause, a bigger Janesville, and when the opportunity comes the city will present a united front in this great fight. This afternoon the directors of this new organization and of the older club, the Commercial, are meeting to discuss ways and means of bringing the whole of the state legislature here to show what Janesville has to offer. If it is decided to extend this invitation it is up to the citizens to make good the invitation by a demonstration that has never been equalled in this section of the state. Adjacent cities will unite with Janesville and the day will be marked with enthusiasm not even equalled by an old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration. Civic pride is awakened and all that is needed is an opportunity to exploit it to show the real spirit of the citizens of Janesville.

"I got an idea," said Farmer Brown. "I never did tell about a woman's gown."

If you try to figger it out, you're lost.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

KNOW YOUR OWN SOUL.

Human nature is much the same now that it was in the time of Socrates. The motto of the ancients, "Know thyself," is as much needed in our day as in theirs.

Tennyson has expressed it as the trinity of "self knowledge, self-reverence, self control."

It is the first duty of every man and woman to get acquainted with his or her own soul.

You are a world in yourself, a world of remembrances, a world of experiences, a world of wisdom, a world of forces.

Why not tap these storehouses and use them in your life and in your work?

If you do not understand yourself nobody else will understand you.

All education, all activity, all expression, are but methods of finding your self.

You are not a creature of heredity, of environment or of accident. You are of divine lineage; you are greater than circumstances.

Kings have lacked the facilities and comforts that are yours to command. You have knowledge which the greatest of the ancients lacked. You live in an age that offers every opportunity and incentive to success.

You know or may know something of all lands and all races, of the secrets of natural forces, of new ways of doing the work of the world. Why not, then, know that which is closest to you—your own being?

When you know yourself you will know your work.

When you believe in yourself others will believe in you.

When you know your own powers you can use them to some noble end.

I do not mean that you should spend your life in idle introspection. Knowledge must be translated into action.

I only mean that you should not work in the dark; that you should intelligently use the forces at your command.

Awaken your soul. Awaken it by religion, by poetry, by travel, by thought, by broader culture, by any necessary means, but awaken it.

Throw your whole self into the game. Don't be afraid. Have faith and purpose and energy and you will arrive.

Know yourself and be yourself. Know the best that is in you and express that best in your life and in your work.

DISCUSS PLANS FOR BOOSTING THE CITY

DIRECTORS OF THE TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND AND COMMERCIAL CLUBS MEET WITH MAYOR.

FAR-REACHING RESULT

Question of Inviting State Legislature to Janesville Was Under Discussion.

At the office of Mayor Fathers, in the city hall this afternoon, an important meeting of the directors of the newly formed Twenty-Five Thousand and the Commercial club is being held to discuss matters of vital interest to Janesville. Principally the question of making plans for extending an invitation to the state legislature to visit Janesville within the next twenty days was discussed and also ways and means of discussing the city's interests.

That the location of an agricultural experimental station, in connection with the state college of agriculture, is to be decided upon at this session of the legislature, is known and this was one of the subjects talked of with a view to a presentation to the legislature of the city's request. Several members of the legislative committee here Saturday expressed great delight with the location for such a school here and it is important to press the matter at once.

As to the advisability of the legislature to visit Janesville before the fair site committee makes their report or waiting until they had formulated their opinion as to the location of the legislature, were discussed. There seemed to be a decided opinion to delay such an invitation until later although it was urged that there would be two reports presented, at any rate and there was no time like the present.

The question of establishing a permanent booster's headquarters in Madison was also suggested. It is being talked just at this time that the city had something to exploit and that an accredited agent for the city working with the legislators, would do a world of good, not only as regards the fair but in expediting the city to the legislature, whose aid and visitors who might be in Madison for the next days or two weeks.

The meeting was called by the chairman of the two board of directors, the request of Mayor Fathers and their decision will start the ball rolling to boost the city in a proper and business like manner. Indications are that if Janesville should decide to invite the legislature down here, other cities in the immediate vicinity would be represented by large delegations and it would be gala day for the whole city. In view of the fact that there is to be no Fourth of July display this year, such a celebration would be most welcome just at this time.

The following committee was named to go to Madison to interview the assemblymen and senators from this section of the state in regard to the matter of moving the fair to this city: Mayor James A. Fathers, chairman; Edward Amerpohl, M. P. Richardson, and F. P. Crook.

D. Connell and J. Martin of Town of Rock, charged with Selling Unsanitary Milk, Others May Be Arrested.
D. Connell and J. Martin, two farmers residing in the town of Rock, were arraigned in the municipal court before Judge Fife at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon charged with selling unsanitary milk in their possession for the purpose of sale, milk that was impure and unsanitary. The arrests were made on the complaint of E. Willmann of Monroe, a state dairy inspector, who found other farmers were also told that their milk fell below standard and appeared in court but no complaints have been made out against them as yet. Connell and Martin were arraigned at four o'clock to secure an attorney and decide what plea they would enter. Both insisted that they took all reasonable precautions with their milk and could not deliver any better milk than the cows gave.

RECEIVING STOLEN PROPERTY CHARGED

Raymer Herpendorf and Elmer Rogers Held For Examination in Connection With Theft of Brass.

Raymer Herpendorf and Elmer Rogers were arraigned in the municipal court late this morning on the charge of receiving stolen brass valves and pipe fittings stolen from the Hanson Furniture factory on Monday night.

The accused professed their innocence although offering no formal plea and their examination was set for ten o'clock next Monday morning. When the English was returning to the jail he discovered the men fishing, but the sack was missing.

About 8:30 o'clock last night Rogers telephoned the police station that he had found a sack containing brass fittings outside a window at the Cullen planing mill. Officer Fanning was sent to meet him and brought the sack to the station. Rogers was requested to call in the morning. Chief of Police Appleby and District Attorney questioned him closely, his accounts agreed so poorly and were so full of contradictions that it was thought best to include him in the complaint against the defendants. The sack that was brought to the station was entirely dry although according to Rogers' story it must have lain in the rain the night before.

In the window of the Gazette are a set of curious old iron spikes or nails taken from the log jail, the first in Wisconsin, which was discovered some months ago in Mineral Point. They are most peculiar in shape, being twisted while hot so as to make them hold better.

They are in a good state of preservation and were sent to W. L. Miller by W. S. Pedley of Mineral Point and loaned by Mr. Miller to the Gazette for exhibition purposes.

OIL STORAGE TANK IS ORDERED BOUGHT

City Clerk Directed to Purchase One of 12,000 Gallon Capacity from E. D. Etnyre Company.

In order that no time may be lost in providing storage for street oil the council at its meeting yesterday afternoon authorized the city clerk to purchase a cylindrical steel tank with a capacity of 12,000 gallons from the E. D. Etnyre company of Oregon, Illinois, to be shipped as soon as requested. The reservoir will not be wanted here until the negotiations for a site and side-track are completed. Because of the usual red tape these take considerable time. The clerk was also instructed to buy a steel sprinkling wagon cost not to exceed $20, and an oil attachment so that it can be used as a distributor when needed.

Nine hundred and fourteen cubic yards of stone have been crushed at the county quarry during the last two weeks according to the report submitted by Superintendent Will Dullin.

The council accepted the bonds of Walter Helms as city sewer and of W. S. Johns as a member of the fire and police commission. Sewers were ordered laid in districts 14 and 15, on Monroe, Garfield and Clark streets and a brick sewer was ordered constructed for the wagons and street department tools.

The clerk was directed to draw an order payable to G. D. Cannon in the sum of $250 for curb and gutter work near Park street.

The council adjourned until Friday, May 16.

DIVISION OFFICERS ON INSPECTION TRIP

Canitlon and Daily of Wisconsin Division Here to Inspect Northwestern Property.

W. D. Canitlon, general manager of the Northwestern railroad; J. W. Daily, superintendent of the Wisconsin division, and Mr. Spirkling were in this city a short time this morning on an inspection tour of the Wisconsin division of the Northwestern road. The party arrived in this city shortly before noon from Chicago, and immediately left for a tour over the K. D. line by way of Beloit, Caladoun and Harvard.

As a result of the inspection of the local yards it is expected that the officials will order a re-laying of the tracks in front of the passenger station, providing a wider distance between them for the accommodation of passengers and the baggage trucks. This will make necessary the moving of the St. Paul tracks several feet to the north. With a wider walk between the two tracks passengers will be allowed greater safety and convenience.

HARD RAIN DELAYS WORK ON PAVEMENT

Macadamizing on Milwaukee Avenue Can be Completed in Three Days' Time When Foundation Dries Out.

Heavy rains yesterday and last night have served to delay work on the macadamizing of Milwaukee avenue and Jefferson avenue for two or three days until the foundation is properly dried out. George Croft, foreman for the Gund & Graham, the contractors who have the Milwaukee avenue work, stated that it could be completed in three days' time after the rains ceased. Approximately 120 tons of stone have been hauled and 200 lineal feet of sub-grade left to be covered. From forty to forty-five loads of stone have been hauled each day as many as eleven teams being in use part of the time. The foundation is very satisfactory and no difficulties have been encountered. OHIO HELPS SOLVE PROBLEM OF HOW TO CARE FOR CONVICTS; PRISONERS BUILD A MODEL HIGHWAY; STATE MAY MAKE ROADS

State Highway Commissioner Marker (top left), convicts working on model brick highway near Columbus, and Governor Cox.

A solution of the problem of how to give convicts a square deal seems to be at hand in Ohio. Recently twenty-five prisoners, unshackled and under the control of a single unarmed guard, built a model brick highway near Columbus, the state capital. They did their work so well, and seemed to be so contented while doing it, that State Highway Commissioner James R. Marker now favors working all state convicts except the more dangerous ones, on the roads.

Governor Cox has recommended to the legislature important changes in prison administration. A bill is now before the legislature, which if passed would result in a large majority of the convicts being employed on the public roads.

FRIEDMAN'S SERUM PUTS "PEP" INTO GERM WARRIORS, SAYS N. Y. PHYSICIAN

Dr. Frederick Franz Friedmann and his brother Arthur Friedmann leaving Bellevue Hospital, New York

That Dr. Friedmann's anti-tuberculosis bacilli are a germ cocktail, acting as an appetizer on the white corpuscles in the patient's blood, is the opinion of Dr. Charles S. Noble, who has been watching the work of the German doctor at the Bellevue Hospital, New York. Dr. Noble says the new serum arouses to activity the white corpuscles and causes them to fight more vigorously the tuberculosis bacilli.

Not Infanticide Necessities. To be an "infant" in a legal sense is not the same as being an infant. A recent case in London was concerned with the question of what constitutes an "infant's" necessities. The young man, who was sued by a furniture dealer, had bought, among other things, 24 candlesticks, 38 weapons, 61 pictures, an Indian splumon, Burmese and Chinese gongs, 28 snuff boxes and two stuffed iguanas. Refusing to pay the bill, the young man pleaded "infancy." The judge gave judgment for the plaintiff.

High Priced Sermon. Perhaps the highest price paid for a sermon goes every year to a German preacher, who discourses on the good deeds of a French-Bavarian named Pavart, who died in Elberfeld in 1699. Pavart left money for this purpose, and the interest now amounts to £420 per annum, which goes to the preacher as his reward.

His Downfall From Quadruplets. When Samuel Rawlings, a baker, forty-one years old, was sentenced to six months' hard labor as an incorrigible rogue, it was stated that his downward career seemed to have begun a few years ago, when his wife gave birth to four children. He had since been prosecuted repeatedly for ill-treating her.—London Mail.

His Luck. "Do you know, young man," began the clergyman, "that when you retire at night you may be called before morning dawn?" "Yes," replied the young man dreamily, with recollections of a poker game of the night before, "and it would just be my luck to have a poor hand."

FURNITURE AND LOVE

"This is one of the most beautiful spots I have ever visited," said Grace, as she rocked idly in her chair. "The man who conceived the idea of building a hotel here should have a monument raised to his memory."

"Rather say that he should be permitted to live here forever," suggested Smithson lazily. "Why put him under the sod so quickly?"

"I meant when he dies, of course," amended Miss Hargreaves. She smiled brightly into the other's eyes, and for the hundredth time that afternoon, Smithson caught himself wondering why he had never realized before what a charming girl Grace Hargreaves was.

He had known her for years but it was not until they found themselves among the first guests of the new hotel in the Restigouche region of New Brunswick that he had had his attention particularly drawn to her. The hotel had only been open two weeks, and guests were still few.

"How did you find the place?" he suddenly demanded.

"Mother wanted a new place," she explained. "Some men who hunted through here last year told her about the hotel that was being built and she insisted upon coming."

"I am here for old furniture," he volunteered. "There are all sorts of odd pieces to be picked up for a song. Their beauty lies in their genuineness; old bits brought out generations ago and used by the present owners who cast longing glances at the painted woods in the shops at Dalhousie."

Grace gave a little scream of delight. "Do you mean to say that there are really places where you can still pick up old furniture?" she asked gravely. "If I had only known, I shall have to telegraph for more money. Old furniture is a passion with me."

"Suppose we pool issues?" he suggested. "In that way we shall not bid against each other and raise the prices. I'll buy it all up and when we get back to town in the fall we will have a division."

Smithson hired a team for a month and daily the three fared forth in search of treasure trove. The others at the hotel wondered at the long drives upon which Mrs. Hargreaves and her daughter went under Smithson's guidance, but none of the furniture they picked up was brought to the hotel and the nine day wonder soon dropped.

Smithson picked up some wonderful bargains and had them all shipped to his town house. Before his vacation time was over he had skinned the cream of the colonial collections in a ten-mile radius but even the anticipation of unpacking his treasures did not console him for the fact that Mrs. Hargreaves had elected to remain for another month.

The long delightful drives behind the fast team had deepened companionship into love as he cleaned and polished his purchases with the painstaking care of a true enthusiast; each piece was a reminder of some little happening of the vacation.

He did not fully realize this until some weeks later when at last Mrs. Hargreaves returned to town and Grace came to claim some of the spoil.

"I should like that old desk," she said, as she pointed to one of the acquisitions. Smithson's face clouded. "I was hoping that you would not want that," he said. "That is a souvenir of our first drive."

"We got a lot of things that first day," she reminded, then blushed as she remembered that moment when Smithson's hand had unconsciously dropped upon her own upon the desk. It had been only an instant but it had stamped itself indelibly upon her brain.

She could not tell him that that was why she wanted it herself, and she wondered if that was also the reason why he wished to keep it. She passed on to other things but each one had some association, and his forlorn expression as she made her choices touched her.

"I really hate to take any of these things away," she said at last. "There are no duplicates and they make such a complete whole that it would be a shame to spoil it all by breaking the collection."

"That might be avoided," he said bitterly. "If I had given less time to the collection and more to the promptings of my heart. It is not selfishness that makes me want to keep these things. It is because each has some association with that happy time. I look at that table and remember our lunch of bread and milk we made off its surface. It's the same way with everything else. Each piece reminds me of you and I am loath to give up even one tiny souvenir of that time."

"Is it really necessary to break the set?" she asked.

"You mean that—that you care for me?" he asked.

Grace nodded.

"No one but a stupid man would have needed to ask that question," she said softly, as she patted the desk affectionately.

"We can make a very lovely home with these—and you, sweetheart," he whispered. "And to think that all this time I thought your interest was only the love of a collector!"

"The love for a collector," she corrected softly, as she yielded to the arm that slipped about her waist.

Barratt O'Hara.

Lieut. Gov. Barratt O'Hara of Illinois declares that the attack recently made upon his character is a "frameup" by his enemies, who have been hurt by the revelations of the Illinois vice committee, of which O'Hara is chairman.

The charges made against O'Hara is that he and a prominent young woman of Springfield, Ill., registered at a Chicago hotel as "T. D. Duncan and wife," on January 17 last.

Dan R. Hanna of Cleveland, son of the late Mark Hanna, who joined the Progressives last year, is said to be getting ready to return to the Republican party. He has been urging his fellow Bull Moosers to return to the fold.

The Bull Moose leaders have one, and all scouted his proposal. "There can't be anything in going backward, and it would be going backward to return to the standpoint principles of the Republican party," declares A. L. Garfield, Bull Moose candidate for governor of Ohio last year. Similar statements have been issued by Walter Brown, Progressive state chairman, and James R. VOTE MONEY TO AID HOG CHOLERA FIGHT

Assembly Passes Bill Providing for $5,000 Appropriation for Preparation and Distribution of Serums.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., May 14.—The state veterinarian's repeated injunctions against the spread of hog cholera in Wisconsin, which is costing the farmers thousands of dollars annually, found response in the passage of the Englebrecht bill in the assembly last night, appropriating $5,000 for the preparation and distribution of serum by the agricultural college. The serum is to be given to the farmers at cost. The Miller bill appropriating $5,000 to poultry associations was passed.

Other bills passed by the assembly were: Jensen providing that county superintendents making out their reports to the state superintendent on time shall receive $25, to be paid by the county; Goff, providing that slaughterhouses shall be at least one-quarter mile from a public highway; Goff, providing that county and municipal authorities may establish local slaughterhouses in the absence of federal inspection; joint committee with Michigan, for uniform fishing right in Lake Michigan; Goff, extending the 55-hour child labor law; Goff, requiring steam railway companies to equip their trains with medical supplies; Senator A. B. Martin, requiring town boards to erect and maintain guide boards at all crossings and imposing $5 fine for failure to do so; Senator Scott, providing for the appointment of officials and employees of the new hospital for the criminal insane at Waukegan; Senator Huber, giving relief to the judge of the twenty-first circuit (Dane county) by permitting another judge to hear cases in the Sauk county branch.

The assembly ordered to third reading the bill by a special committee for reciprocal fishing right with Minnesota and Iowa in the Mississippi river. The joint finance committee this morning reported for indefinite postponement the Weigel bill to refund nearly a quarter of a million dollars to the Northwestern Mutual Life insurance company alleged to have been excessive and therefore illegally retained. Similar bills have failed at other sessions. Indefinite postponement was recommended for the Everitt bill taking the management of the Wisconsin industrial school for girls at Milwaukee out of the hands of the board of lady managers, lodging it in the state board of control. The committee recommended passage for the True bill appropriating $50,000 for the construction of a bridge across the Wisconsin river at Merrimac, Sauk county, and a bill appropriating for the industrial school for girls.

The DAUGHTER of DAVID KERR

by Harry King Tootle

Illustrations by RAY WALTERS

COPYRIGHT BY A.C. MCCLURG & CO., 1913.

CHAPTER I.

The surprise which Gloria knew her unexpected arrival would occasion was even greater than she could imagine. Several things had happened in Belmont recently to disturb David Kerr, and he was in no frame of mind for further complications.

The stockyard company was beginning to hint at certain favors it wished extended; and with an election coming on, Kerr was in no mood for such concessions. Worse still, the Belmont News had just changed ownership, and the new editor was not displaying that subservient fealty which had characterized all Belmont papers in the past. Already the News was snapping at his heels and asking questions which were extremely pointed. To have Gloria descend upon him at such a time was too much for even David Kerr. His mastery of the situation caused him to have no great fear for the stockyard demands and the newspaper outcry, vexing problems though they were, but Gloria in Belmont was quite another proposition.

"Father, this is Gloria," explained David Kerr's daughter when she had established telephone connection with Locust Lawn.

"Gloria!" he exclaimed. "Where are you?"

"Here, in Belmont, at the station. I just came."

"How did it happen? I wasn't looking for you."

"Aren't you glad to see me?" "Glad to see you? Of course I am, but it's a surprise. When did you come? How do you happen to be here? Why didn't you let me know?"

"I wanted to surprise you," she laughed. "Annabel Hitchcock's aunt died, so we couldn't go to California. I had nothing else to do, so I came home. Wasn't that right?"

"Exactly, exactly. But it's a bad time to come to Belmont."

"I don't care, I'm so glad to be home. How do I get out to Locust Lawn?"

"You can't well wait there for me to come in for you. Take a carriage and tell the driver you want to go to the end of the Townsend Park car line. Wait for me in the drug store. I'll get there almost as soon as you do."

"Hurry, father, because I'm so anxious to see you. It's been an age since I saw you, and you know I don't know a thing about Belmont. I'm just dying to meet everybody, and then I'll ask some of the girls out to visit me."

"We'll talk that over after awhile," was his noncommittal response. "Wait for me at the drug store. Good-by."

The carriage drive through Belmont and Townsend Park, a suburb, was of educational value. It gave her an increasing respect for Belmont. Although there was no remarkable residence district, there were occasional homes which denoted refinement as well as comfortable circumstances. This was not in keeping with what David Kerr's daughter had been taught about her father's town. The number of automobiles also surprised her. By the time she reached the place appointed for her meeting with her father there was not so much of condescension in her attitude toward Belmont.

This changing viewpoint did not mean a diminution of enthusiasm. More than anything else it spurred her curiosity. She realized that the real Belmont was an advance over what she had been led to expect, just how much only a dip into the social whirl could reveal. The pleasurable part of it all was that Gloria was still queen by right of inheritance. If the kingdom was more extensive than she had thought, the court life would also be more brilliant.

Gloria had not long to wait for her father. An old-fashioned carriage covered with mud and drawn by fat bay horses drew up before the drug store. Out of the vehicle a somewhat ponderous individual pulled himself—a smooth-shaven man who appeared to be something over fifty, with heavy jaws and piercing eyes which looked clear through you from under beetling eyebrows. With a cry, the girl lunged herself upon him and smothered him with kisses.

"You old dear!" she exclaimed. "You haven't changed a bit. I'm so glad to be at home with you. Isn't it just dandy to be back in Belmont?"

The man smiled. Even if he had not changed, as she had sworn, he recognized that she had changed. In the two years since he had seen her, out of the chrysalis had come the butterfly; and this radiant girl was his daughter. For one brief instant he unlocked the neglected chamber of his heart which was the prison of the past, and thought of Gloria's mother. Then the present with its obligations and its stern realities recalled him to the life that was from the days that once had been.

"Welcome home, daughter," he said, making a peck in the general direction of her mouth to do duty for an answering kiss. With David Kerr kissing had long ago become an obsolete custom. Then, too, no one had ever accused him of being unduly demonstrative.

Seeing the negro driver bowing and scraping, Gloria left her father to speak to him. She might have forgotten Locust Lawn, but she had not forgotten Locust Lawn's chief factotum. Old Tom, who had been in Kerr's employ for a generation, had been her constant companion when she had outgrown the continuous vigilance of her nurse.

"How'd you do, Tom," she said, extending her hand. "I don't believe you remember me. Now, do you?"

"Bless yo' heart, Miss Gloria," grinned the old negro. "I'd sho'ly know you anywheres. An' it does me a powerful sight o' good to see you. Why, chile, when you went away you wuz jes' a little gal. An' now look at you; you's a reg'lar grown-up woman. Ah, reckins you'll want to git married soon. Hey?"

Gloria laughed; that same fresh, infectious laugh of hers which had warned many a wary suitor that he had not found the combination to her heart and had brought him to that plane of friendship on which he was always welcome. As well try to describe Patti's singing, in the days when her charm was greatest, as try to describe Gloria's laugh. There he those persons so presumptuous that on hearing it would aver she had never loved. Whether David Kerr was one of those his countenance did not betray. As he waited for her answer to the question put her by the old negro, a privileged servant, his face was as impassive as ever it was on the night of an election.

"Why, Tom," she explained when she had ceased to laugh at the foolishness of the question, "I love everybody, of course, but nobody in the wide, wide world like that. I'm never going to marry any one; do you think so?"

"Miss Gloria, you neveh do know what de Lord'll pervide. Look at me. Ah done say dat, too, when I wuz young lak you; but Ah's had 'er wizes already, an' mah time ain't come to die yet."

"All right, Tom. I don't know what the Lord will provide, but I'm not going out of my way to help Providence."

The words of this colloquy were neither more nor less than David Kerr had anticipated. It was from the spirit rather than from the wording of her reply that the father sought to ascertain the answer. It had been his one hope that somewhere on her travels she would meet a man worthy the love of a woman such as she, that she would marry him and never return to Belmont. Almost unconsciously, with that end vaguely in view, he had been diminishing his activities. He had money enough for Gloria's future, already she had her own income, and his age made even power irksome. He would move away from Belmont when Gloria married, and when she came to visit him it would be to some charming rural spot in the east she loved so well. Other men of his type had retired, why not he? One had even raised a horse which had won the greatest classic of the English turf. But for him, he had musings, there would be no such pursuits to bring him into the public eye.

"You Old Dear!"

That he wished to avoid for Gloria's sake. And now all his plans seemed to be coming to naught—Gloria had come home, free of heart and anxious to mingle in Belmont society.

The drive to Locust Lawn was uneventful. Gloria watched for landmarks along the way, and commented on the changes twelve years had made. Locust Lawn seemed closer to town than in the old days. Most of her remarks about places they passed were addressed to Tom, because together, when she was a child, they had been over the road many times. David Kerr, never much of a conversationalist, was content to listen, hoping some chance speech might aid in clearing up the situation. Everything Gloria said, however, seemed only a confirmation of her determination to enter at once into Belmont's gayeties.

"Dar's de first sight o' Locust Lawn, Miss Gloria."

They had just reached the top of a hill and Tom pointed with his whip to a house on the next eminence. Looking up, Gloria saw, not the estate of her imagination, but a square red brick house looking rather desolate through the bare branches of many trees. Locust Lawn at the end of winter was no enchanted fairy bower; but she was far too clever a girl, and far too good at heart, to betray any disappointment. To her the place was home, and she was anxious to recognize it as such.

The interior of the house was no more inviting. As soon as possible Gloria wandered from room to room, her inspection making her give silent thanks that she had not asked any of her friends to join her in her descent on Belmont. The wall paper with big yellow flowers, the carpets with big red flowers, the rocking chairs with the crocheted ties, and the marble-topped table in the parlor with the inevitable plush album upon it, were no less distressing than the wax flowers under the glass case, the steel engraving of the Scotch Covenanters' worshiping in a mountain glen, and the tin bathtub. She even gave thanks that she had not brought a maid.

"Mistah K.," said a negro mammy, putting her head in the door of the living room after Kerr and his daughter had finished going over the house. "Tom wants to know if you is goin' to town dis mawnin'."

"No, Lily, I ain't going to town today. Tell Tom to send Yellow Sam with the spring wagon for Gloria's trunks."

"Dey's ben telephonin' you from town. Dey say it's pow'ful important business. Miss Gloria, she done willin' to stay wif me, jes' lak she use' to. Ain't you, honey?"

"To this Gloria gave laughing assent, but her father shook his head. "I'm not going to town today. And tell the telephone operator not to connect any one with Locust Lawn all day. I ain't going to be disturbed. Do you understand?"

Aunt Lily, who probably was given that name by some ante-bellum joker because of her ebony hue, nodded her acknowledgment of the order and withdrew.

The reasons David Kerr had for not wishing to get into communication with any one in Belmont were several, but the most potent was his desire to be uninterrupted while engaged in studying his daughter and evolving some plan whereby she could be taken from Belmont before her slightest suspicion had been aroused.

One episode in their tour of the house had given him much comfort. Gloria had paused in the old-fashioned parlor and gazed long at his life-sized portrait, done in oils, over the marble

SUFFERED FROM STOMACH AND GALL BLADDER EIGHT YEARS

States Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy Cured Her.

Mrs. H. L. Trammell, Houston, Texas, writes: "I have suffered from stomach and gall bladder trouble for eight years and I have been under the medical attention of the best physicians and specialists in Texas and abroad. Their latest advice was an operation as the only cure or even relief. I have only taken the second bottle of your Wonderful Stomach Remedy and I feel wonderfully improved. I have every confidence in it and believe it will effect a permanent cure."

This is only one of the thousands of letters that I received constantly praising Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. It cures all kinds of stomach, liver, intestinal, bilious, dyspeptic and gall stones, try one dose tonight. One dose will convince you of its wonderful curative powers and will also convince you of your suffering. Send for FREE valuable booklet on Stomach Ailments to Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. hanted. Then she had looked about the room, and not finding what she sought, had asked:

"Where is one of my mother?"

"There is none," he confessed, and added quickly, "but I'm going to have one painted for you. That was given me recently by the First Ward club."

"What's the First Ward club?" "A political organization."

"Politics! Do you know anything about politics?" David Kerr almost smiled.

"I don't know whether the president is a Democrat or a Republican," she added.

"Don't bother about it."

"Oh, I'm not going to. I don't want to be a suffragette and march in a parade and be put in jail on bread and water. I don't even read about it."

Her absolute ignorance of politics, nothing remarkable in a girl of her years and training, was no small grain of comfort to her father.

It was not until after luncheon that Gloria disclosed the subject nearest her heart. Her father, like a wise general, permitted her to open the engagement. He had never been a man to exert more strength than was necessary for the discomfort of the enemy. He wanted all her batteries unmasked, all her forces engaged, before he brought his own side into action.

For some time they sat in silence in the living room, gazing into the open wood fire. More than once Kerr thought his daughter was about to speak, but each time she seemed to think better of it or else lose her courage. He knew that something weighed on her mind, for she was much quieter than was her wont.

Case After Case

Plenty More Like This in Janesville. Scores of Janesville people can tell you about Doan's Kidney Pills. Many a happy citizen makes a public statement of his experience. Here is a case of it. What better proof of merit can be had than such endorsement?

Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson, 118 Terrace St., Janesville, Wis., says: "I was a sufferer from kidney trouble for ten or twelve years. My kidneys became sluggish and their failure to do their work properly caused me to become weak and helpless. The kidney secretions were unnatural and often my joints were sore and swollen. I had almost given up hope of getting relief when I had the good fortune to hear of Doan's Kidney Pills. I got a supply at the People's Drug Co., and they soon restored my kidneys to a normal condition. I advise other kidney sufferers to try this remedy. I take pleasure in again recommending Doan's Kidney Pills and advising their use in all cases of kidney trouble. I am still free from kidney complaint and my back does not bother me to any extent."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Stop That Cough In A Minute

Would you give morphine or chloroform to your baby or take it yourself? Of course not. Yet most patent cough cures contain one or both. They stop a cough in a minute, which is dangerous. A cough should be loosened internally by healing the lungs, loosening the phlegm, throwing it out, which is done by coughing. Badger Cough Balsam does not contain morphine or chloroform. It is made by percolation from bloodroot, lobelia, pine bark, wild cherry, etc. It chases a cough in a few days without filling the lungs with poisonous phlegm. The irritation is relieved, the lungs healed without danger of pneumonia. It's safe for children or old people. Get a bottle today for 25 cents. Badger Cough Balsam is made by Mr. F. L. Plentz, our Graduate Pharmacist and Chemist, Badger Drug Co., Milwaukee and River Sts.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville, Daily Gazette, May 14, 1873.

Fire in La Prairie: The residence of Hollis Holly, in the town of La Prairie, was destroyed by fire on Monday afternoon, with the greater parts of its contents. The fire was accidentally produced. Mr. Holly's loss is about $2,000, insured.

We went to hear the Mrs. Van Cott at the first M. E. church last night but could get no nearer to the exercises than four or five feet from the door, owing to the people there assembled. There are a great many sinners here who ought to be converted, but they never will as long as they are required to stand on the sidewalk and receive the benefit of Mrs. Van Cott's lectures through several inches of plank and a layer of paint. There is a movement to transfer the greater number of people can be accommodated. The capacity of the Baptist church is double that of the first M. E. church and a greater amount of good could be accomplished.

The Wisconsin State Sabbath school convention will take place this year at La Crosse, commencing on May 20th, and continuing three days. Many leaders of the Sabbath school workers will be present and assist in the exercises. J. J. Martin, pastor of our city, is engaged to conduct the musical department.

Accustomed as we are to life's suddenness there was a surprising suddenness in the story of this dame run or brought to our ears this morning of a wedding which will come off in spite of the interference of outside parties, who are old enough to attend exclusively to their own affairs.

Coal Mine Disaster: The latest news of the Drummond colliery, which is following an explosion, in that fire is still raging in the shafts and all hopes of rescuing the men who were entombed are given up. Another heavy explosion occurred this morning. It is known that only four or five escaped from the mines. The fire caught from a state of the gunpowder. One report states that thirty men went down the shafts to fight the flames and were killed by the second explosion. Another later telegram states that there are about one hundred men that are in the burning mines and are sure to be cremated.
